WASTED HOURS

Folks say that I have wasted many hours
In loitering along a lilac lane,
In sprawling on a hilltop sweet with flowers,
In wandering through mists of summer rain.

Long since they sighed and left me to my dreaming.
He will not plow who walks to meet the moon,
Who whispers to the wan stars softly gleaming
And hearkens to the songs the fairies croon.

Folks shake their heads, but oh, they are not knowing,
As in the beaten paths they trudge and plod.
That in these wasted hours I am going
With Beauty in the ways that lead to God.

Aged Couple Ride To Town In Buggy Married 56 Years

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Taylor, residing between Liberty and Milano, were in town Tuesday. They came in their buggy drawn by two horses. Mr. Taylor was born in Alabama, March 6, 1840 and he and Mrs. Taylor were married in that state September 1870. They came to Milam County Christmas Eve 1878. On the first Monday in January 1879 he made his first visit to Cameron and met Major J. C. Rogers, Capt. John B. Wolf and W. D. Paden. All being soldiers in the Confederate Army a friendship was formed which lasted during their lives.

Mr. Taylor is active for his years and is in good health, but not so spry as when he wore the "grey of the sixties." He has a home and is above want, but has not accumulated much of this world's goods. He enjoys the friendship and esteem of a large acquaintance.

Moody Would Grant Time to see if Hassell is Crazy

Geo. J. Hassell may have a chance to escape the gallows.

This is a possibility because claims have been made that he is insane. Governor Moody is inclined to doubt this and wants proof which he says can be given by the courts and by officers.

It is not known who has made the application to commute the sentence.

Friends of Moody do not believe he will interfere in the verdict assessed in the courts at Farwell. Here is a dispatch from Austin about the application.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 14.—Gov. Dan Moody Monday night refused to commute to life imprisonment the death sentence of George J. Hassell, confessed slayer of 14 persons, declaring he believed that "prison authorities or officers of the law" would make any investigations apparently necessary "before they would execute an insane man."

Commutation was sought on the grounds that Hassell allegedly is insane. Gov. Moody said that if time between now and the date of Hassell's execution proves insufficient to establish his mental condition, he will grant more time. Hassell is sentenced to die February 25.

The Governor's statement follows:

"The code of criminal procedure makes provision for cases of this character. It offers orderly and safe procedure to insure society against possibility of an injustice in cases of this nature. I believe that the prison authorities or the officers of the law would initiate the proceedings before they would allow an insane man to be executed. If those interested will make a bona fide effort to have the issue tried between now and the date set in the judgment of conviction or sentence, and that proves insufficient, I will grant time to have the issue of sanity tried, but for the present something should be done by those interested toward giving the condemned man an opportunity to show his mental condition as the law provides."

The Governor issued his decision at 8:30 o'clock Monday night. Application for commution did not reach his desk until after he had gone to dinner Monday evening and awaited his return to the Capitol.

YOUTHS PLEA GUILTY IN DISTRICT COURT

HAIRSTON AND STRATTON ASK MERCY OF JUDGE ON BURGLARIES

Twelve years in the state penitentiary was the penalty meted out to the three youthsful bandits in district court here Thursday following plea of guilty.

Lyter Huffman had not made a statement until the court convened here Thursday. The other two confessed in advance of Huffman, having made statements to district attorney Lewis on Wednesday.

Clyde Stratton and James Hairston in District Court Thursday entered a plea of guilty to six cases of burglary in connection with the attempt to rob the Milano bank last December.

On Wednesday the young men made confessions to Jack Lewis, district attorney, and asked the mercy of the court.

Hairston was formerly a student in high school here. Stratton hails from Shenandoah, Iowa. Both are under sentence to the penitentiary for the robbery of the bank at Odell. They have been in the jail at Vernon, being returned here by Sheriff Blaylock.

Lyter Huffman also implicated in the burglary is in the Milam County jail but has made no statement. He was seeking Wednesday to obtain the services of an attorney.

The cases against the men grew out of the theft of a torch machine at Rockdale and the theft of a car there; the burglary of the Cameron Machine Shop in Cameron in which they took a drill to rob the Milano bank vault. This was on December 15, 1926.

Vivian Wilfong, pretty 20 year old girl, was with the men on the night of the robberies and is being held in the Cameron jail. She was returned here Wednesday night from Belton where she was taken on the arrival here of the three young men.

She is under indictment here in connection with the Milano job.

The youths did not rob the bank there, being frightened away, making their escape through Cameron and were arrested at Mineral Wells.

Sells Papers; Buys Telephone Shares With His Earnings

Sam Graham Jr., 10 year old Cameron boy is making a good showing selling the Curtis Publishing Company's publications. He started out something like two years ago with no regular customers, just ordering six Saturday Evening Posts, one or two Ladies Home Journals and a Country Gentleman at the time, now his sales total 80 Saturday Evening Posts each week, 75 Ladies Home Journals and 15 Country Gentlemen's each month. Prize vouchers are issued on over certain number of magazines sold. Among some of the prizes Sam has won are: two watches, a lumber jacket, base balls, bats, etc. He is very polite, never talking to a lady without taking off his hat. He shows a remarkable ability as a salesman, in other words he tries to know what he is selling. On being asked what one of the magazines contains he will give the prospective customer a general line-up on the articles that appear in that issue. He buys part of his clothing and is paying for Southwestern Telephone stock until he gets through high school, if he needs any money at that time to help pay his way through medical school he intends to sell his Southwestern stock. Sammy is a member of the Methodist church and Sunday School and is very particular that he gives a tenth of his earnings to the church.—Temple Telegram.

BAKERS URGE BUY AT HOME; RUN BIG AD

Ants are found to move at a much faster speed in warm weather than in cold.

Chicago's Tribute

"The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battle field and patriot's grave to every loving heart and hearthstone all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature."
—Abraham Lincoln

ST. GAUDENS' STATUE OF LINCOLN, GRANT PARK, CHICAGO

Country's Needs Ever First in Lincoln's Mind

Chauncey M. Depew, former United States senator, in an installment of "Leaves From My Autobiography," Scribner's Magazine, a retrospection of his childhood, youth and public service covering a period of eighty years, told some new anecdotes of Lincoln, Grant, Andrew Johnson, Seward, Chase, Commodore Vanderbilt and other notable men of Civil war days.

"I had a long and memorable interview with President Lincoln," Mr. Depew writes of a visit he paid to Washington in 1863 when he was secretary of state for New York. "As I stepped from the crowd in his reception room he said to me: 'What do you want?' I answered: 'Nothing, Mr. President. I only came to pay my respects and bid you goodby, as I am leaving Washington.' 'It is such a luxury,' he then remarked, 'to find a man who does not want anything. I wish you would wait until I get rid of this crowd.'

Some Lincoln Stories.

"When we were alone he threw himself wearily on a lounge and was evidently greatly exhausted. Then he indulged, rocking backward and forward, in a reminiscent review of the different crises in his administration and how he had met them. In nearly every instance he had carried his point and either captured or beaten his adversaries by a story so apt, so 'on all fours,' and with such complete answers that the controversy was over. I remember eleven of the stories, each of which was a victory."

Lincoln was always on the lookout for a good yarn, although he told Depew he never "invented" one.

One night there was a reception in the executive mansion. Rufus C. Andrews, surveyor of the port of New York and a confidential adviser of the President on New York affairs, attended the reception with Mr. Depew. As the procession of handshakers moved past, Lincoln stopped Andrews, and, leaning over, spoke very confidentially to him, delaying the ceremonies for some time. Momentous issues were impending. Lincoln was in the midst of the campaign for renomination, his cabinet was inharmonious, the war was on and decisive battles were about to be fought. Newspaper men and politicians buttonholed Andrews on his return to his hotel.

"Andrews made a great mystery of his confidential conversation with Lincoln and so did the press," Mr. Depew writes. "He explained to me when we were alone that during his visit to the President the night before he told Mr. Lincoln a new story. The President delayed him at the reception, saying: 'Andrews, I forgot the point of that story you told me last night; repeat it now.'"

Appealed to "Plain People."

"'I am accused of telling a great many stories,'" Mr. Depew quotes Lincoln. "'They say that it lowers the dignity of the Presidential office, but I have found that plain people (repeating with emphasis plain people), take them as you find them, are more easily influenced by a broad and humorous illustration than in any other way, and what the hypercritical few may think, I don't care.'

"In speaking Mr. Lincoln had a peculiar cadence in his voice, caused by laying emphasis on the key-word of the sentence.

"In answer to the question how he knew so many anecdotes, he answered:

"'I never invented a story, but I have a good memory and, I think, tell one tolerably well. My early life was passed among pioneers who had the courage and enterprise to break away from civilization and settle in the wilderness. The things which happened to these original people and among themselves in their primitive conditions were far more dramatic than anything invented by the professional story tellers.

"'For many years I traveled the circuit as a lawyer and usually there was only one hotel in the country towns where court was held. The judges, the grand and petit juries, the lawyers, the clients and witnesses would pass the night telling exciting or amusing occurrences and these were of infinite variety and interest.'"

Inharmonious Cabinet.

Referring to Lincoln's adroitness in handling men and his personal humility, Mr. Depew says:

"No President ever had a cabinet of which the members were so independent, had so large individual followings and were so inharmonious. The President's sole ambition was to secure the ablest men in the country for the departments which he assigned to them, without regard to their loyalty to himself. One of Mr. Seward's secretaries would frequently report to me the acts of disloyalty or personal hostility on the part of Mr. Chase with the lament: 'The old man—meaning Lincoln—knows all about it and will not do a thing.'"

Lincoln on Agriculture

To speak entirely within due bounds, it is known that 50 bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of corn can be produced from one acre.

Take 50 of wheat and 100 of corn to be the possibility and compare it with the crops of the country.

Unquestionably it will take more labor to produce 50 bushels from an acre than it will to produce 10 bushels from the same acre; but will it take more to produce 50 bushels from one acre than from five?

More thorough cultivation will require more labor to the acre, but will it require more to the bushel?—Abraham Lincoln.

Public Sentiment First

Public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed. Consequently he who molds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes and decisions possible or impossible to be executed.—Abraham Lincoln.

Senate To Bar Jim Ferguson From Ever Holding Office

Austin, Texas, Feb. 15.—The Fortieth legislature is bent on repealing the Ferguson amnesty act, in disregard of the warning of Ferguson supporters that such action will incite "Farmer Jim" and "Ma" Ferguson to another war of vindication.

By an 18 to 6 vote the senate Tuesday engrossed Senator Tom Love's bill abrogating the law with which the Thirty-Ninth legislature sought to restore to James E. Ferguson his political citizenship, taken away when he was impeached as governor in 1917.

The depleted "old guard" of Fergusonites, apparently realizing resistance was futile, offered but feeble objection.

Senator I. D. Fairchild of Lufkin pleaded that the Senate not fan the dying fires of "Fergusonism."

Prolong Fight

"If you pass this measure and prolong the 10-year fight, the slogan in the next election will not be 'Me for Ma,' but 'Ma and Me,'" he said.

James E. Ferguson, who since his wife left the governor's office has been devoting himself to his weekly paper, refused to comment on the senate's action, but said he would make a statement Wednesday.

Fairchild conceded that some of the pardons granted by Mrs. Ferguson should not have been granted, but pointed out the pressure brought on her by political friends and foes alike to extend clemency. Political wiseacres say the amnesty repeal will pass the house "with a whoop."

Moves Insurance Office To New Location

Mack L. Harvey owner of the Milam Mutual Insurance Association has moved the offices of the company from E. O. Schiller drug store to the Sampson building occupied by the Quality Tailors.

Mr. Harvey purchased the fixtures from the Gause State Bank and has installed them in the building giving the office a fine appearance and better facilities.

Paul Ramon has been employed by Mr. Harvey to assist him in the direction of the business and is a capable office man.

The equipment of this office will give to Mr. Harvey a better place to do business in and will be a greater convenience to his policy holders and the public.

The company is writing the mutual plan insurance, featuring a policy for business men of $5000 liability and at a cost in line with other mutual insurance.

Mr. Harvey has made a success of the business and hopes to double his membership this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green of Brownsville arrived in Cameron last week for a visit with their mother, Mrs. Idella Green and sister, Mrs. Pearl Clement who were injured in an automobile wreck.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Louisiana Woman Tells Why She Relies On Cardui for Her Troubles.

"When just a girl," writes Mrs. G. W. Britt, of Haughton, La., "I suffered quite a bit at times .... I would be so tired all the time that I didn't really enjoy anything.

"I took three bottles of Cardui and very soon, I saw quite a difference.

"Later on in life, after I got married, I was very weak and nervous, before my baby came. I remembered what Cardui had done for me when a girl and sent for it again.

"I only had taken two bottles when I felt so much stronger and better.

"I am a great believer in Cardui because I know it did me good."

Cardui should do you good, too. Try it.

TIME TO PLAN FOR THE SPRING GARDEN

A. & M. GARDEN DATA IS VALUABLE TO RAISERS OF HOME VEGETABLES

College Station, Feb. 16.—With spring just around the corner, now is a good time for every farmer, and for that matter folks in the city also, to begin planning for the home garden, J. F. Rosborough, horticulturist of the Extension Service, A. & M. College of Texas pointed out in a recent talk on gardening delivered over Station WTAW, the A. & M. College radio station.

Among other things of importance to be considered in planning the garden is the question of size, Mr. Rosborough said. "One fourth of an acre of vegetables properly planted and cared for is sufficient for a family of six grown persons, throughout the spring, summer and fall, and will give in addition, a surplus for home canning and storing," he added. "It is seldom advisable to plant more than one-half acre of vegetables for home use, regardless of the quantity of land at hand. In the city the size of the garden generally depends upon the space available."

In selecting the site for the garden, attention should be given to adequate slope for suitable drainage in case of excessive rainfall and also to sufficient air drainage to prevent a possible pocketing of frost. Convenience to the house and distance from large trees which may sap the soil and shade the vegetables are other matters to consider.

Virtually any type of soil can be used for a home garden if properly fertilized but a sandy soil is to be preferred, Mr. Rosborough said. The sandy loam soils are more easily worked, will respond more readily to fertilizer and are not injured by tramping when wet. For early crops a light soil is best.

"Prior to breaking the land for the garden it is important that a heavy application of well rooted stable manure, at the rate of two tons to the one-fourth acre, should be spread over the surface and then turned under," the horticulturist advised. "Fresh manure applied to the garden soil at this time may cause a burning of the plants due to short period for decomposition now before the crop is to be planted."

Those plants which mature quickly and produce large yields in proportion to the space occupied were recommended for the small garden, such for example, as beans, cabbage, or onions. "Early vegetables," said Mr. Rosborough, "may be removed and followed by a second planting of such crops as radishes, carrots, and beets. In some locations the second crop may be followed by a fall crop, such as spinach, turnips and lettuce. Those crops such as squashes, corn or sweet potatoes should not be grown where the area is limited but are satisfactory for the large farm gardens."

Use only the best seed, for "old seed saved from the previous season or purchased at half price can usually be relied upon to give half priced returns and results," Mr. Rosborough added.

TURKEYS BRING GREAT YIELD TO THE FARMERS

HOW TO RAISE THEM TOLD BY A. & M. COLLEGE EXPERT ON TURKEYS

College Station, Feb. 15.—Due to the fact that turkeys proved very profitable during the last year, turkey raising in Texas promises to show a considerable increase, many farmers having suddenly doubled their breeding flock, according to Professor D. H. Reid, head of the poultry husbandry in a recent talk on incubation and brooding of turkeys delivered over Station WTAW, the A. & M. College department, A. & M. College of Texas, radio station.

A number of communities report having received an average of 35 cents or more a pound for their 1926 turkey yield, Prof. Reid said, adding that the lowest price he had heard reported was 23 cents a pound. "These high prices have greatly stimulated the raising of turkeys in Texas and farmers who have been content to raise from twenty to forty turkeys a year have suddenly increased their breeding flock from two hens and one tom to twenty hens and two toms, or are keeping larger flocks."

This situation has brought about many serious problems in incubation and brooding of the young turkeys "The farmer's wife who had only the eggs from two turkeys to incubate could without any serious trouble find two or more capable chicken hens in her flock that would gladly act as foster mothers to incubate and brood her turkeys, but when she has the eggs from ten turkeys the incubation and brooding problems have changed entirely. Artificial incubation and brooding have become an absolute necessity."

Great care should be taken to disinfect the incubator thoroughly before putting the turkey eggs in it, as small turkeys are very susceptible to disease Prof. Reid said. Turkey eggs have to remain in the machine four weeks and so are likely to lose more moisture than do chicken eggs. In consequence care should be taken that the incubator is kept as moist or even a little more moist than is necessary to get the best results in hatching chicken eggs. The hydrometer should be run from fifty to sixty per cent, humidity when hatching turkey eggs.

After the turkey chicks are seventy-two hours old, they should be transferred to a clean, warm, well ventilated brooder, with one foot of floor space in the brooder for each young turkey. It is not advisable to put more than 125 young turkeys in the same brooder, Prof. Reid said. The young turkeys should be out of doors by the time they are one week old and on clean green grass or growing grain. "After the young turkeys are large enough to fly it is wise to let them out to range as far from the chickens as possible," he added. "Young chickens and young turkeys or old chickens old turkeys or ... have been raised together but not on land where kept for any length of time. Keep the young turkeys in clean houses, on clean soil, feed them carefully, and you can raise them artificially even better than you can raise them by natural incubation and brooding."

THE ALL-REVEALING AD

A century from now a file of the advertising pages of the newspaper and magazine of today would provide a complete history of the customs and chaacteristics of the period. These advertisements record what the people are wearing, the problems of the day, current thought and the traits of the generation.

Pick up any issue of the family newspaper and there in word and picture is the story of the day. Preserve that issue and posterity a century from now can tell what the men and women of this generation wore, what their mode of transportation was, how they were amused and entertained. The advertisement have made the past an open book.

Picture a man in the year 2027 chancing upon a file of this newspaper for the year 1927. Turning to the advertising pages he would see arrayed before his eyes the styles in wearing apparel for men, women and children of one hundred years ago. He would see the types of automobiles in use and from the number of automobile advertisements he would deduce that the automobile was in great favor and universal use. By the same reasoning he would learn that the radio was in great demand, even exceeding in popularity the phonograph and player piano.

Training in the art of sleuthing would not be necessary for this reader of the advertisements of the past to inform himself, from the cancer-cure ads, that cancer was a menace to the generation and, from other ads, that obesity and exceeding thinness concerned the public as greatly as the malignant cancer.

The advertisements are also a record of economic conditions, revealing market prices and estimating the supply and demand.

For the discerning contemporary reader the newspaper advertisements afford more interesting and valuable information than he can preserve for posterity.

THAT'S WHAT COUNTS

In the list of what may be called the chief characteristics of our present era may be found the assertion that this is an age when "nobody has any time." On this point practically all the observers and critics of our social order are agreed.

They draw their proof for this assertion from the ever-increasing speed of our means of transportation. A half-hour reduction in the time it takes to go from Chicago to New York; a mile added to the record of the number of per hour in airplane travel; a half hour gained in a trans-Atlantic trip, these are events that our hurrying age greets with joy. We have no time to dally.

Thus runs the lament of the critics. But is it indeed a matter of such grave concern? True, there was a time when men had more leisure than they take to themselves today, but we have yet to learn that in those days men had a greater abundance either in social progress or human happiness than we have today.

We can't deny that we are in a hurry, but as compared to more leisurely periods in history it isn't to be denied that we get things done. And after all that's what counts.

THE OLDEST INHABITANT

It might be worth while if those persons who are always looking for the "oldest man or woman living" were to give a little thought as to what it means when they find such a individual.

Merely as an object of interest the oldest inhabitant deserves no more comment than the tallest man, the stingiest woman or the most mischievous boy. These are traits or characteristics which bring little credit to him or to the community.

It is fullness of life we want; not mere length. Fortunate indeed is he whose years cover a long span of life. but more fortunate still is he who can make these years count for something in service to his fellowmen We do not begrudge the oldest inhabitant the years he has accumulated. But the individuals who seek to enlist our interest in him could more easily get it, if we could feel that they were not mindful of the words of the poet:

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; In feelings, not in figures on a dial."

In Utopia the rents are just as high as here, but the tenant acquires title to the property after he has paid for it seven times.

A feminine writer says no wife should suffer in silence. But if she is silent, how can she keep from suffering?

Times have changed much. Back in pioneer days the pedestrian had to dodge the deadly rattler, also.

A man seldom hears the knock of opportunity if he pays too much attention to the knocks of the neighbors.

When one of these old boys gets the flapper craze, it seems perculiarly fitting to call him a sexagenarian.

The catalogue price enables you to estimate the cost of keeping daughter in college. Just multiply by three.

One thing that makes the American speed up is the fact that he's three laps behind a charge account.

The way to get the most experience for the least money is to keep the neighbor's children for a day.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

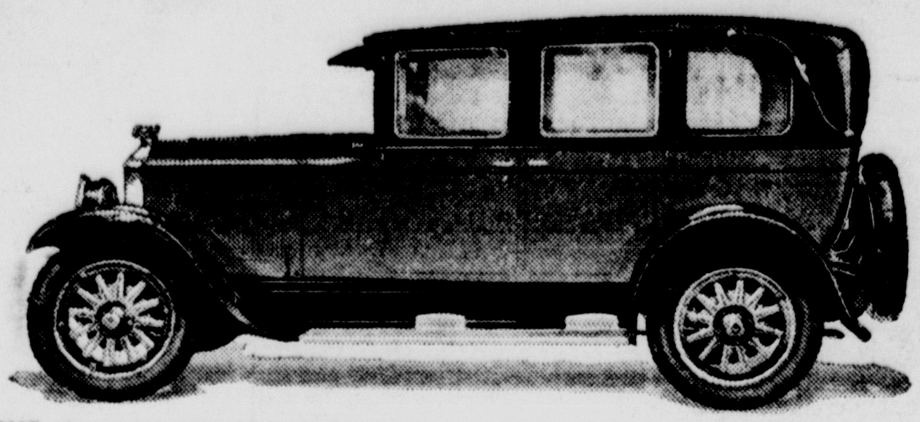
LATEST BUICK MODEL



AMONG the new models which attracted the crowds at the New York automobile show last week was a new body type introduced by Buick. This model is called the Town Brougham, and is a deluxe five passenger closed car on the Series 115 chassis.

The body is of the sedan type, with the rounded, leather covered rear quarters and the landau hinges of the brougham. It is distinctly in the deluxe class, carrying special equipment, upholstery and finish. The color on the upper works of the body is Delaware green, with Yorktown green below the belt. The leather rear quarters are colored. Double gold striping is placed over the black lower molding. The wheels are dark natural wood. The upholstery is a shade of green to harmonize with the body colors.

A very pleasing effect has been obtained by skillful application of colors. While the entire upper part of the body is in Delaware green, the insets around the windows are in the lighter Yorktown green. This treatment gives an effect of color harmony hitherto associated only with the most expensive custom-built cars.

The Series 115 chassis has a wheelbase of 114½ inches and is powered with the Buick valve-in-head engine of 207 cubic inches displacement, developing 63 horsepower. The speed is rated at 70 miles an hour. The chassis is equipped with the new vacuum ventilator which holds crankcase dilution to such close limits that only four changes of oil a year are necessary, provided the level in the crankcase is kept up. Gasoline mileage between 17 and 19 miles to the gallon.

The Town Brougham is a companion model to the Series 115 Country Club coupe, and carries the same equipment. This includes a smoking set and vanity, high quality carpeting in the rear compartment, artistically designed hardware, indirectly lighted instrument panel, and the new Buick radiator emblem.

LOBLOLLY PINE ONE OF SOUTH'S GREAT RESOURCES

The loblolly pine, known also as the old field and shortleaf pine is one of the South's greatest natural resources as it grows rapidly and is naturally adapted to large areas in nearly all of the Southern States. Its profitableness as a crop and how it is best grown and harvested is told in a recent publication, "Loblolly Pine Primer," Farmers' Bulletin No. 1517-F, issued by the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

An acre of loblolly pine will protected from fire will average a growth of from 300 to 1,000 board feet of saw timber yearly, says the booklet.

Loblolly pine grows naturally from Southern Deleware and eastern Maryland over the coastal plain and lower Piedmont sections south and west to eastern Texas and southern Arkansas. It is distinguished from other pines by its three leaves, or straws, in each cluster, deeply divided and rough bark, and very prickly burrs which when closed are about the size of a duck's egg.

Copies of the publication may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

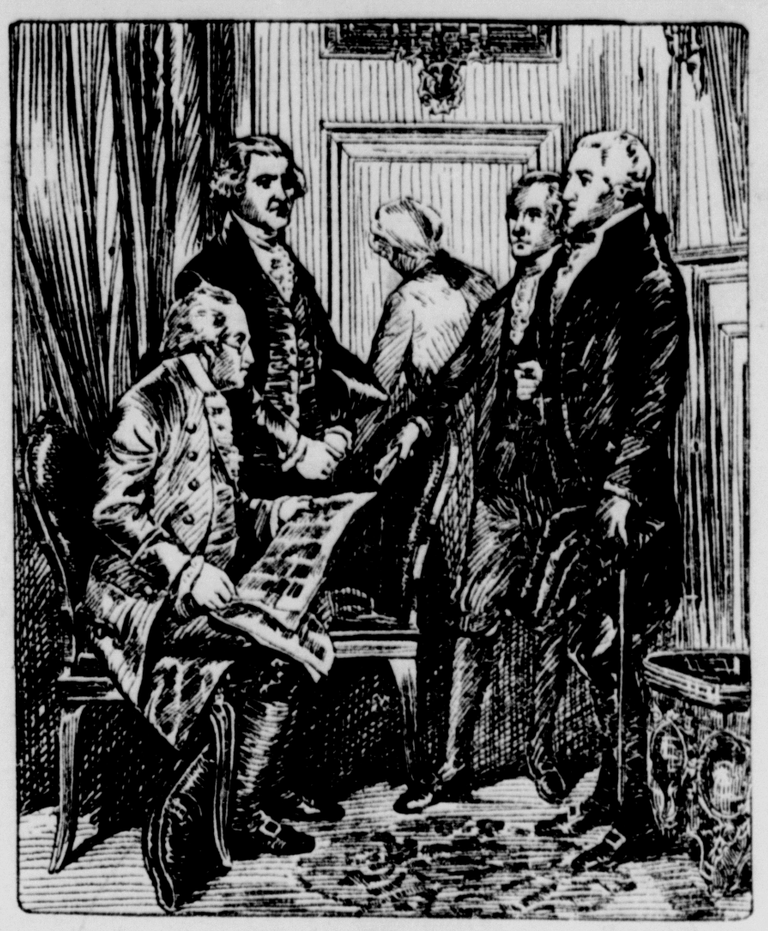
WASHINGTON AND FIRST CABINET

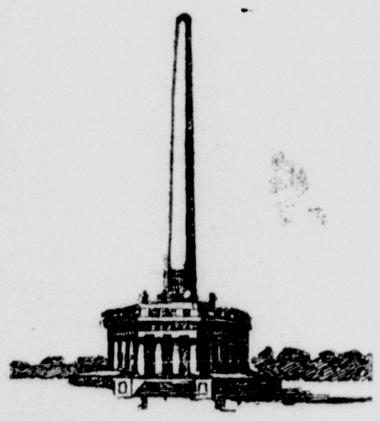


A rare photograph of President Washington and the nation's first cabinet, men whose names have since become revered in the nation's history. In the photograph are, from left to right: Secretary of War Henry Knox, Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson, Attorney General Edmund Randolph, Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton, and President Washington.

Monument Is Nation's Tribute to Greatest Son

The idea of a monument to the memory of George Washington originated in the house of representatives. It was the ultimate outcome of a resolution introduced by John Marshall in 1799 "that a marble monument be erected by the United States in the capital, at the city of Washington, and that the family of General Washington be requested to permit his body to be deposited under it; and that the monument be so designed as to commemorate the great events of his military and political life." Before this, however, the Continental congress, in 1783, had adopted the resolution "that an equestrian statue of General Washington be erected at the place where the residence of congress shall be established."

In considering these two resolutions congress amended the former so as to provide that a "mausoleum of American granite and marble, in pyramidal form, 100 feet at the base and of proportionate height shall be erected in the city of Washington." Meanwhile, the equestrian statue mentioned in the resolution of the Continental congress culminated in the statue by Greenough, which was placed in the rotunda of the Capitol in 1841. But it was later moved to the east front of the Capitol; and more recently to the Smithsonian museum.



Reproduction of the Original Design of the Washington Monument.

No definite steps were taken toward the erection of the monument until 1833. During that year the Washington National Monument society was organized, with the idea of erecting a monument by popular subscription. In 1836 the society invited American artists to submit designs for a monument. The only requirement was that any plans submitted should "harmoniously blend durability, simplicity and grandeur." The cost of the proposed structure was to be not less than $1,000,000.

Proposed Memorial.

Many designs were submitted. The one selected was that submitted by Robert Mills, a prominent architect of his time. This design, known as the original design of the Washington National monument, is reproduced in the accompanying illustration. The plan, as shown, was a circular colonnaded building, 250 feet in diameter and 100 feet high, from which was to spring an obelisk shaft 70 feet square at the base and 500 feet high.

But funds for the monument accumulated slowly because contributions had been limited to one dollar a person. Thus, it was 1847 before enough money to justify beginning the building of the monument was accumulated.

In 1848 congress adopted another resolution authorizing the society to erect a monument upon a site to be selected by the President of the United States and the board of managers of the society. That site on the public reservation near the Potomac river, where the monument now stands, was selected. The corner stone of the monument was laid on July 4, of that year. This stone was a block of marble weighing 24,500 pounds, and was quarried and presented to the society by Thomas Symington of Baltimore. The stone selected for the foundation was the blue rock of the Potomac valley, in blocks weighing from six to eight tons.

Design Changed.

When the actual work was begun Mills' plan of a circular colonnaded building at the base was abandoned and only the obelisk shaft, which was changed as to proportions, was retained. On this plan the monument was finally erected to a height of 150 feet, by 1860. Then the Civil war halted work on it. But at the end of the war further appeals were made to the public for contributions, and to congress for co-operation. It was in 1876 that the resolution was offered to that body for the completion of the monument. This act, as passed, carried with it an appropriation of $200,000. It provided for the transfer to the government of all property of the Washington National Monument society, and that the construction of the monument be placed under the joint supervision of the President of the United States, the supervising architect of the Treasury department, the architect of the Capitol, the chief engineers of the army and the first vice president of the society.

The first work on the resumption of the construction of the monument was the strengthening and enlarging of its foundation. This was because the original foundation was found to be inadequate to bear the proposed shaft.

Stands on Original Site.

The completed monument, which stands 555 feet high, was dedicated in February, 1885. The total cost was nearly $1,200,000. Thousands of pilgrims visit it every year, many of them traveling to its summit to view the marvelous panorama of their national capital.

Contrary to a rumor at one time, the Washington monument has never been moved. From the very beginnings of its construction it has remained on the present site. However, in one sense, the monument moves daily with the sun, turning upon an arc under the influence of the rays of heat. Likewise it moves under pressure of the wind. But despite these daily and occasional movements there never has been the slightest disturbance of poise.—Pathfinder Magazine.

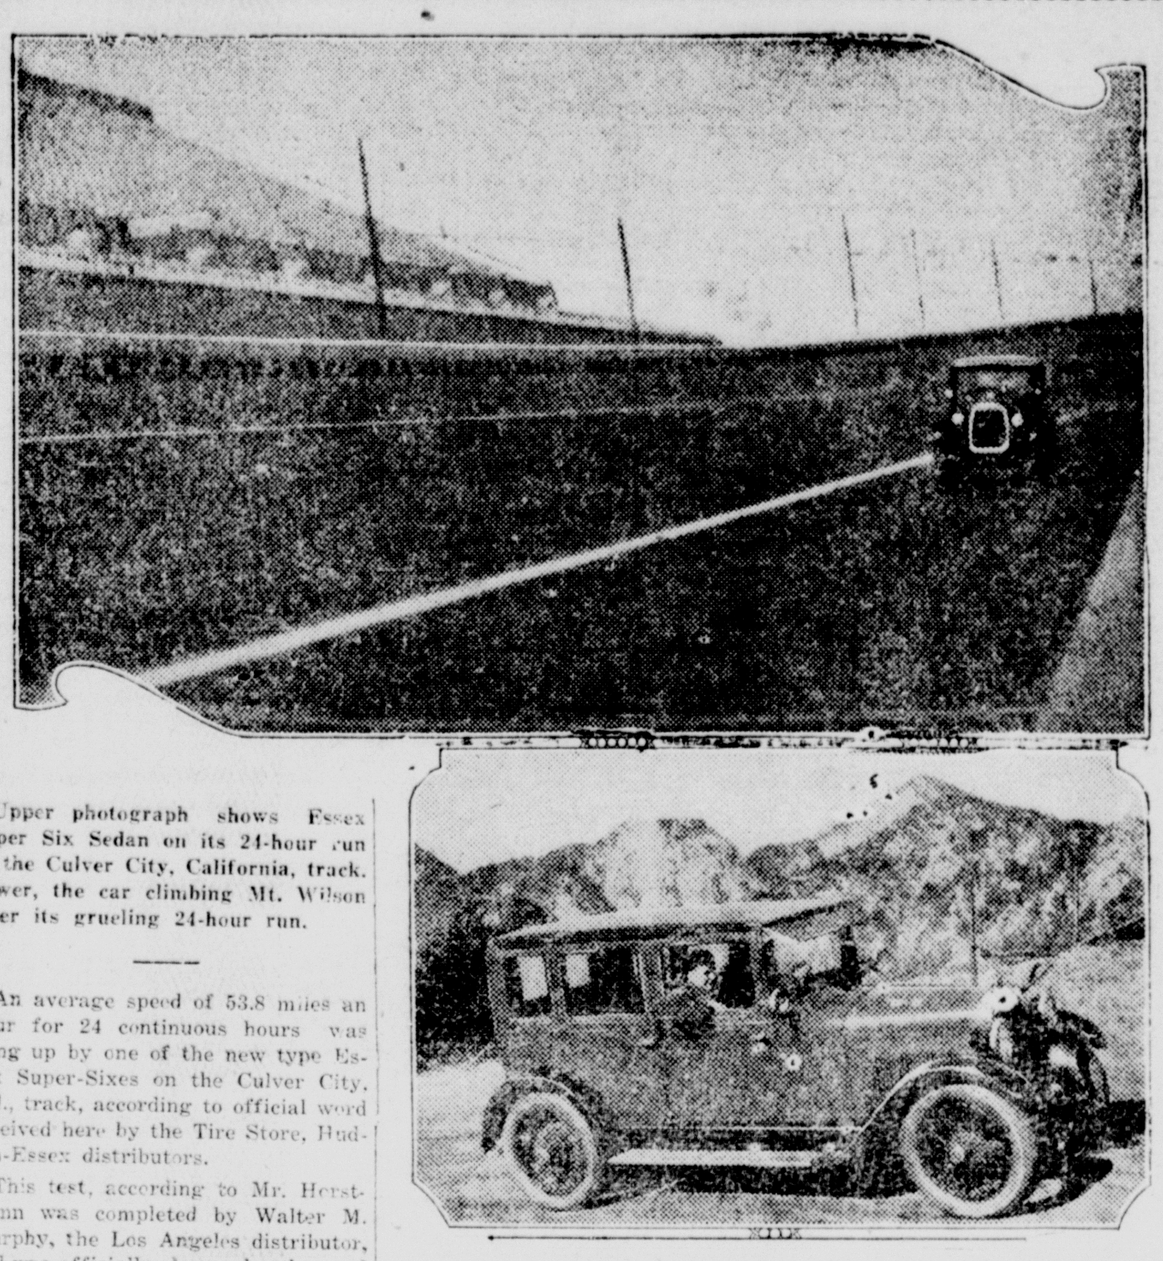
MORE THAN FIFTY MILES AN HOUR FOR TWENTY-FOUR HOURS CONTINUOUSLY



Upper photograph shows Essex Super Six Sedan on its 24-hour run on the Culver City, California, track. Lower, the car climbing Mt. Wilson after its grueling 24-hour run.

An average speed of 53.8 miles an hour for 24 continuous hours was hung up by one of the new type Essex Super-Sixes on the Culver City, Cal., track, according to official word received here by the Tire Store, Hudson-Essex distributors.

This test, according to Mr. Horstmann was completed by Walter M. Murphy, the Los Angeles distributor, and was officially observed and scored by Los Angeles newspapermen and by the Western Union. After the Essex had dashed off its 1291 miles on the track, it completed a trip up Mt. Wilson and return, and was placed for display in the distributor's Los Angeles showroom.

"When this test was undertaken," said Mr. Horstmann, "the program was simply to equal the 50-miles-an hour average which has been promised by the Hudson organization for the Essex Suped-Sixes. To be safe, this speed was somewhat exceeded early in the 24-hour run, so that even when fog and a damp track handicapped the latter part of the run, the average was substantially better than had been planned.

"Such a test takes more out of a car than ten times the mileage under usual driving conditions, yet the car was immediately started on the Mt. Wilson climb which involved entirely different operating qualities. No difficulty at all was experienced in either part of the test. The top speed made on the track was around 63 miles an hour.

"We consider that this test backs up our statement that the Essex Super-Six is the most enduring Essex ever built. The old Essex 'four' was admittedly a remarkable car, yet it never equalled the performance just completed at Culver City. At the Indianapolis races even, the cars, though their speed is much higher, operate only a total of 500 miles as against this Essex's 1291. This record was made, too, not with a stripped car, but with a regulation Essex Sedan.

Our Los Angeles distributor, Mr. Murphy, declares that he has seen many tests run at Culver City, but that never has a motor car finished more successfully or in more perfect mechanical condition than this Essex Super-Six. No mechanical changes whatever were made during the run, and the car was running smoothly and easily at the finish."

Joyce Cox On Board To Name Coach At University Of Texas

Austin, Feb. 12.—Clyde Littlefield rated by many sport followers the outstanding athlete of Texas University history from all indications will be head football coach of the Longhorns in 1927. The special committee of the Texas University athletic council composed of Jim Hart, Austin lawyer and a great Longhorn fullback, 30 years ago, and C. H. Batnel, professor of engineering and Joyce Cox, prominent law student, has picked Littlefield as the logical successor for J. Doc Stewart, serving his fourth year as football and basketball coach.

Littlefield is head track coach and freshman coach in football and basket ball. His track agregations have won the past three consecutive Southwest conference championships and gained national recognition an Orange and White combination holding the world's record for the mile seven-eighths medley relay.

Littlefield's selection was slated for last Monday night but friends of Stewart obtained agreement of the football committee to delay for several days its recommendation to the athletic council.

In the four years ending with his graduation in the Spring of 1916, Littlefield won twelve letters, four each in football, basketball and track a record no other Texas University athlete has equalled. He played in the backfield and was a marvelous passer, showed to great advantage as a basketball center and set records in the low and high hurdles. He also was a pitcher of merit but could not find the time to go out regularly for baseball

It is no secret there is a rupture between Stewart and L. Theo. Bellmont, athletic director, but Bellmont insists he has had nothing whatever to do with the subject of whether Stewart should be retained. The athletic council is the only body with authority to employ coaches, he said.

Considerable bitterness has arisen among these who favor Littlefield, and those favoring the retention of Stewart and the fight may have far-reaching results. Littlefield likely would serve as basketball and track coach as well as football coach. Two of the greater track stars developed by him are Jim Reese of Comanche, who in 1925 won the national collegiate mile championship and Rufus Haggard of Austin, who in 1925 set a world's collegiate record of 6 7 1-4 inches in the high jump.

PREVENTION OF CHILDREN'S DISEASES

The mortality and morbidity rate of children can be materially reduced by the use of such preventive measures as immunization, vaccination and isolation of the sick, and parents are urged by Dr. H. N. Barnett, director of the bureau of child hygiene of the state board of health, to use these measures to safeguard their children's health.

"Education of parents is very much needed as to the seriousness of diseases of childhood," he stated. "Children should be shielded from exposure to diseases common to children, and under no conditions be intentionally exposed to them. There is absolutely no truth in the once popular belief that children should have such diseases as early as possible in order to be through with them, as it is not a necessary condition of childhood to have any of these maladies."

Isolation of Sick Children

"A child who is suffering with any of the infectious diseases common to childhood should be put in a room apart from other children and kept isolated until danger of infection is over Children who have suspicious colds or who are running temperature should be kept out of school for a sufficient length of time to determine if they have any infectious disease. By this means, many epidemics of children's diseases may be prevented.

"Diphtheria may be prevented by the use of toxin-antitoxin. Have your children given this immunization by your family physician. Whooping cough is one of the most serious diseases of children, being especially fatal to the young. Seek to protect your childresn from this and all other infectious diseases."

A Number Of Diseases Decrease

Health conditions among American and Canadian Wage-earners and their dependents in 1926 were good, according to the statistical bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, their records showing a decrease for a number of diseases of major public health interest.

"Typhoid fever established a new minimum in 1926, with a death rate of 4.2 per 100,000 population. Diphtheria also established a new low point with a rate of 9.5 per 100,000, while scarlet fever shows the incidental rate of 1925, this being 3.4 per 100,000. Diarrheal diseases are shown to have reached a minimal figure, while diseases of pregnancy and childbirth showed a most gratifying decline. For the second time in the history of the American and Canadian Industrial population, the deathrate from tuberculosis was below 100 per 100,000 population.

"In the field of violent deaths, the rate for accidental drowning was the lowest ever registered, while the rate for accidental burns was the same as the rates recorded in the years 1925 and 1922."

NEW RADIATOR SEEN ON HUDSON-ESSEX LINE

Among many new features evident in the Hudson Super-Six of 1927 is a new radiator of beautifully proportioned lines. Auto fans will now have to look twice at the sleek, graceful contour of the new car to recognize their old favorite in its smart new clothes. New bodies, new colors, new appointments add further interest and distinction.

Hudson Super-Six cars now equipped with Bendix self-energizing four-wheel brakes. In this system the momentum of the moving car is used to develop braking action. The cars stop smoothly but promptly.

A Child's Laxative which Mothers Can Rely On

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he constantly advised mothers to give only a harmless laxative which would help to establish natural bowel "regularity."

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin mothers have a regulating laxative which they can depend upon whenever a child is constipated, bilious, feverish or sick from a cold, indigestion or sour stomach. All children love its pleasant taste.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself how perfectly it cleanses and regulates the bowels of infants and children.

HOLD-UP MAN ROBS LANGE'S FILLING STATION AT THORNDALE

The cash register at Lange's Filling Station, located on the Thorndale and Taylor highway in the western outskirts of town was emptied of its cash at the command of apartly masked man Saturday night about 8 o'clock. Walter Lange, who was in charge of the station was alone at the time and says a slow rain was falling and he was inside the station when a car drove up and halted at the station, and by the time Walter got out to wait on him the man had drawn two gallons of gas from the pump. After some dickering about changing a ten dollar bill the man produced the proper change and left the station only to return about five minutes later. Walter had again seated himself inside the station and was reading when the man returned and without warning smashed the window of the office and leveled a rifle at Walter Lange's face as he motioned to the cash register. Mr. Lange says the crashing of the window frightened him and at first he thought the man had shot at him and when he saw the man's face with a handkerchief over the lower part of his face he knew what the man wanted when he pointed to the cash register, even though the robber only grunted and pointed to it. Walter gave him the money. Along with it were some checks which the robber motioned to put back in the drawer, indicating that he only wanted the currency and coin. The man leaped into his car and left taking with him about $8 of loot. He seems to have dirven direct to the Hi-Way station here in town and purchased two gallons more of gas and as a result of his transaction "shortchanged" Alfred Unnasch, the attendant, and gained $4 more in cash.

The officers, having been notified immediately following the incident at Lange's station, began pursuit and overtook a man stuck in the mud about two miles from town on the eastern side of Brushy creek. Constable Miertschin and Deputy Sheriff Sharp Young arrested the man who gave his sir name as a Mr. White, but failed to learn his first name. He was taken to Taylor and held until Sunday when Sheriff Blaylock came over for him and took him to Cameron. The man said he was on his way to Waco and claimed to be an oil well driller.

PRISON RELOCATION PASSED FINALLY BY HOUSE BY 110 TO 2

Austin, Tex., Feb. 14.—Suspending the rules, the house late today engrossed and finally passed 110 to 2 the bill to rehabilitate the Texas prison system, after opponents of the relocation feature had fought to partial compromise with the faction that favored empowering the governor to pass on property sales incident to re-location.

The house adopted a substitute amendment by Representative Loftin, allowing the prison board and governor to contract all property sales except as affects land. Sale of land must be referred to the legislature for approval.

THORNDALE AWARDS COTTON CONTEST PRIZES

PRIZES IN THE COTTON CONTEST AWARDED FRIDAY NIGHT AT SCHOOL BUILDING

(Thorndale Champion)

A special program of music and round table discussions from representative business men and farmers featured the meeting held in the school auditorium last Friday night at which time the awards were made to the three winners in the "More Cotton on Fewer Acres" contest sponsored by the Thorndale Cammercial Club of Thorndale last season.

The meeting was opened by music by the High School Orchestra and this was followed by talks from two boys of the Vocational Agriculture Class. Marvin Stewart discussed the various means and methods of maintaining the soil on farm lands and the importance of terracing. He made a good talk. Linnie Lane followed with a discussion of "Our Friends and Enemies Among Insects" pointing out habits of many species of insects that are helpful to farmers and some that were enemies of the farmers. He, too, "knew his stuff," and interested his auditors.

Short talks were made by O. D Graham, Chas. A. Davis, C. Salier, and each of the three winners in the cotton contest, Chas. Richter, Oscar Melde and Arthur Scruggs, who won first, second and third prize, in the order named above and received checks from the Thorndale Commercial Club for $50, $30 and $20, respectively.

The round table discussions were confined primarily to the consideration of means of overcoming the financial burden of the people of this section as a result of the low prices of cotton and the "one-crop" method of farming practiced so generally. Mr. Graham spoke on the opportunities sweet potatoes offered farmers as a side line and money crop. Mr. Saller discussed a wider range, taking in melons, onions, cucumbers, and roasting ears and advocated organizing themselves into a shipping association to handle the various crops as they matured and were in excess of our home consumption. Davis spoke at length on shipping green corn, or roasting ears in car lots. He has made a special study of this feature of diversification and tried to organize the farmers in this community six years ago wth a view of growing white corn in sufficient quantity to make shipping in car lots profitable to both growers and shippers. Mr. Davis indicated that we were a bit late in getting organized to compete with South Texas, but he promised to get into communication with reliable shippers whom he knew personally and have a more definite report on this matter at a later date. The meeting was interesting and most all present felt that some progress was being made in solving a very important problem agriculturally.

Upon a motion being offered which carried, the meeting went on record favoring a corn growers association and Mr. Saller, acting as chairman, requested that all farmers willing to plant not less than ten acres in white corn with a view of selling it in the field to shippers at a good price to be agreed upon later, should call at either of the local banks or on Smith Summerlin, secretary of the Commercial Club, and register their names and the number of acres they are willing to plant in corn for this purpose. All farmers are urged to co-operate in this effort because about 1,000 acres in corn is about the minimum acreage that shippers will contract to buy.

THE NAME OF WASHINGTON

Some of the youth and the truth of a nation,
Ye that are met to remember the man
Whose valor gave birth to a people's salvation,
Honor him now, set his name in the van.
A nobleness to try for,
A name to live and die for—
The name Washington!

Calmly his face shall look down through the ages—
Sweet yet severe with a spirit of warning:
Charged with the wisdom of saints and of sages;
Quick with the light of a life giving morning.
A majesty to try for,
A name to live and die for—
The name of Washington!

Though factions may rock us, or party divide us,
And bitterness break the gold links of our story,
Our father and leader is ever beside us.
Live and forgive! But forget not the glory
Of him whose height we try for,
A name to live and die for—
The name of Washington!

Still in his eyes shall be mirrored our fleeting
Days with the image of days long ended;
Still shall those eyes give, immortally, greeting
Unto the souls from his spirit descended.
His grandeur we shall try for,
His name we'll live and die for—
The name of Washington!
—George Parsons Lathrop.

Washington From Human Viewpoint

Mr. Charles Moore of Washington, on the occasion of the recent unveiling of a Washington statue, admonished the assembled spectators not to keep Washington on a pedestal, but to bring him down among them, for he was one of them, human, as they were human.

All the heroes of history had their weaknesses, their human limitations. Their greatness is only greatness when considered from this human point of view.

On the other hand it is neither desirable nor necessary to dwell unduly upon their faults when there is such inspirations in their virtues. There can be no just quarrel with Mr. Rupert Hughes, who is doing merely what others have done in reminding us that Washington had a high temper, that he swore on occasions, that he played cards along with other gentlemen of his time, that he partook of liquor, also in keeping with the custom of the day, or that he was not unfailing in his attendance at church. Washington was a gentleman, but as a soldier he had, in his earlier days, experienced some of the roughest going of frontier life. He knew the profane vocabulary of the time, and while there is no record that he was gratuitously profane, "cussing" merely for the sake of being emphatic, it is a matter of record that he could go into a rage and draw on that vocabulary. Perhaps the most noted of the tongue-lashings that have gone into history was that which Washington gave Gen. Charles Lee for the latter's incompetence and ignominious failure at the battle of Monmouth, for which he was court-martialed and dismissed from the army.

No higher tribute ever was paid Washington than by his intimate associate, Thomas Jefferson. In that tribute Jefferson says: "His temper was naturally irritable and high-toned, but reflection and resolution had obtained a firm and habitual ascendancy over it. If, however, it broke bonds, he was most tremendous in wrath. . . . On the whole his character was, in its mass, perfect, in nothing bad, in a few points indifferent; and it may truly be said that never did nature and fortune combine more perfectly to make a man great, and to place him in the same constellation with whatever worthies have merited from man an everlasting remembrance."

BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

(From The Messenger)

THE CONQUEST CAMPAIGN

You have been hearing from time to time mention made of the Conquest Campaign, of its purpose, but the thing we want to do now is to fit into it as individuals in a way that will be pleasing to our God.

The purpose of this Campaign is to set aside Baptist indebtedness in Texas which totals about six million dollars. This indebtedness has been accumulating from time to time for a great period of time back. Baptist have been going on building schools and hospitals and other worthy causes and enterprises have been taken care of while sufficient money to pay cash has not been at hand. This is not at all contrary to good business for every business, almost without exception, finds it necessary to go in debt. And surely Christian people cannot be criticized for going in debt when the sick are begging at their doors for admission to the hospitals and for medical attention. While on the other hand the young people have been calling at our schools wanting to enter, but the schools being filled to capacity we were unable to take them without more buildings. And then too at this very hour there are hundreds of prepared men and women anxiously waiting to go as Christ's Messengers to a foreign field but for a lack of funds we are not able to send them. And a still more pathetic call than that is the fact that a goodly number of our old preachers who made it possible to have towns and churches and the high stage of civilization that we now enjoy, are to-day on the shelf without the necessities of life. These brethren are waiting to see what we will do for them. Still another pathetic call comes to our Orphan's Home. Our great Home yonder in Dallas turns away at least 1,200 orphans each year. They come asking to be admitted where they will have food and shelter and be fathered and mothered. But for a lack of funds they, too, must be denied.

Now it behooves us as God's children to pay off the indebtedness that we have made in an effort to take care of these needs and as rapidly as possible set aside all of this indebtedness and then go on to still greater fields of usefulness, for in doing this we do the work the Master has assigned us to do, for He said, "In as much as ye do it unto one of the least of these ye do it unto me.' '

It is not the custom of the pastor to press unduly any cause, matters not how worthy it is, but as the custom of the past has been so will the Conquest Campaign be. These objects are presented and laid on your heart as a child of God, and you are to do for them the thing that will satisfy your own heart and mind, and the thing that you believe will please your Heavenly Father.

You understand that the plan of the Campaign is that you shall pay as much as possible cash, if possible half of what you mean to give, and then make apledge to be paid by September 15th, but of course if you have faith in thefuture and want to make a pledge for more to be paid in September than you are paying in cash now that will be alright. The thing that we want you to do is to face your own responsibility with your Lord and we have no quarrel with you.

I know that this church will do what is right. I have presented to you thru three very trying years the claims of righteous, just causes and you have met them nobly and beautifully, and that is the way that we planned this Campaign to go off. So you will be prepared to do what you think is right in your offerings to the Conquest Campaign.

CORRECTION

In publishing the honor roli last week of those who made a definite pledge to the church and paid it thru the month of January, Mr. Joe Denson's name was left off by oversight. It should have been on the list. If there are others who have paid the amount of their subscription for the month of January, if their name did not appear we will be happy to make the correction. You will make mention of this to Mr. Black.

We might say just here that is nothing less than remarkable, for Mr. Black a stranger to have kept the books for some four or five hundred accounts and make a statement on two hundred and thirteen for the honor roll and make only one error.

GROWTH OF THE B. Y. P. U.

The B. Y. P. U. is comparatively a new organization. The first organization for the training of young Christians fostered by Baptsts in America was the B. P. U. A., organized in 1899 This organization embraced the United States and Canada. In 1896 the B. Y. P. U. as an auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention was formed. In 1918 the B. Y. P. U. work was turned over to the Baptist Sunday School Board. In 1914 there were 3,193 B. Y. P. U's. in the South. In 1926 there were 18,791, with 531,415 members. There are 113,046 members in Texas.

Why this rapid growth? The answer is:

1. The plan is a simple, group plan.
2. It trains in church membership.
3. It is true to its aim of developing leadership, initiative, character and loyalty to Chrst and the church.
4. The churches and the denomination are behind it.

REV. M. L. PARDO CALLED AS PASTOR

We are happy to know that the Marlow church has called Bro. Pardo as Pastor. We have often wondered why a number of these churches have not used this able consecrated man before.

Bro. Garrett has influenced this church to call Bro. Pardo and we feel sure that it is a happy selection for the church.

WHY SHOULD WE SING?
By H. P. Black

"Oh, surely melody from Heaven was sent to cheer the soul when tired with human strife, to soth the wayward heart by sorrow rent and soften down the rugged road of life."—Kirke White.

"Music is as a shower, bath of the soul, washing away all that is impure."—Schopenhauer.

The above quotations alone furnish good reasons for singing in home and church, but here are other reasons:

1. Music is attractive.
2. Music is impressive.
3. It is the handmaid of religion.
4. God commands us to sing.
5. Christ practiced it.

Every person with the smallest or the greatest talent for singing or playing an instrument should use it for the praise and glory of Him who gave it.

ITEMS OF INTEREST

We all would like to extend congratulations to the Men's Bible Class for the new interest shown in their work recently. They have an attractive meeting place. Their number is growing Sunday after Sunday. We are looking for a still larger membership in that class.

We can detect a real difference in the music now and before Mr. Black came. The choir is fuller and the audience joins in singing and our music is becoming attractve, however Mr. Black has been so swamped with other duties till he has not had a great deal of time to devote to the music yet.

It was recently agreed that each week a report of the resident membership of each church in Cameron and the number in Sunday School attendance would be published and then the average or the per cent. Last week the Baptist and Presbyterians stood 52 per cent; the Methodist and Episcopalians stood 48 per cent. Many of the members of the church who pull this average down believe in efficiency. Suppose their children were to make that kind of a grade at public school.

If every member of this church were just like me what kind of a church would this church be?

Some people take the question of obedience very, very lightly. They should remember that the Savior said, "He that believeth and is baptized the same shall be saved." The question of obedience and baptism is not a gotten or put off for time indefinitely, thing to be passed up lightly or for-

The Pastor greatly appreciates the efficient and splendid way the work was carried on in his recent illness.

Stop-Look-Listen!

American railroads are the safest in the world to ride on. They are safer than any other kind of transportation. But you can make them even safer by being more careful. The welfare of yourself and family may be involved.

The railroads are making a vigorous effort to reduce accidents.

Won't you help?

You can help in many ways and especially by observing these ten don'ts.

DON'T cross railroad tracks, either walking or driving, until you stop and look in both directions, whether view is obstructed or not.

Stop—look—listen!

DON'T try to cross tracks in front of an approaching train. It pays to wait.

DON'T cross a track after a train has passed, until you have made sure no train is coming from the opposite direction.

DON'T walk or stand on railroad tracks. If compelled to walk in railroad yards, avoid walking between the rails of any one track. There is usually room between the tracks.

DON'T let your children play around railroad tracks or trains. Teach them to play elsewhere.

DON'T get on or off a non-passenger freight train, or crawl under it.

DON'T attempt to get on or off a moving passenger train. Wait until it stops.

DON'T be careless when stepping on or off a standing passenger train. Watch your step.

DON'T stand on platforms of passenger cars. It is safer inside.

DON'T place hand or arm in an open window. The window may close unexpectedly.

Two-thirds of all railroad accidents are incurred by persons going on railroad tracks without stopping, looking and listening.

You share in the responsibility for these accidents.

Your co-operation means greater safety.

H. E. CLUB SOCIAL

The H. E. Club had a delightful trip around the world Saturday night, February 5th. The members included: Velma Newton, Florence Ledbetter, Ruby Belle Nash, Lois Glenn Brooks, Gerry Slaughter, Lois and Ruby Robbins, Euline Slaughter, Ethel Green, Ambaline Mode, Geraldine Miles, Frances Sharpe, Bonelle Neinast, Doris Adams, Melissa O'Neal and Miss Eleanor Hensley, our club leader and chaperon.

We first left America, Ruby Belle Nash's home. At America we took away with us a flag of the United States. We ate sandwiches, cakes candy and drank ice tea. We then went to Japan, Bonelle Neinast's home. Here we entered the home and everything was like Japan. Japanese dolls greeted us in corners and on the arms of chairs. We each gave wishes here in the Japanese way and were told whether it would come true or not. The most interesting of the wishes were made along the line of: "I wish I could go to the Girl's Clothing Contest, which is to be held at Waco, April 28, 29 and 30. The answers would create much sorrow or joy. The answers were like this: You will get your wish, or you have a chance; or you have asked an unreasonable wish, and you will not get your wish. We were served rice, hot tea and cakes here. We then went to Mexico, Euline Slaughter's home. We were served chili and crackers here. She had her home in Mexico's colors. We then went to Africa; Florence Ledbetter's home. We were served bananas and cocoanuts. From Africa we went to France, Gerry Miles' home. We had grape juice and sandwiches here. She had the colors of France waving in the air. We then went to Iceland, Palace of Sweets and were served Orange Ice and received mints as a favor of Palace of Sweets.

The favors from each country were as follows fo reach girl: America, U S. Flag; Japan, Japanese fan; Mexicon, red and green ribbon; Africa. "Nigger toes"; France, package of powder; Iceland, snow, cotton strip.

Though it was rainy and muddy the trip was completed and now we can hardly wait for March to come, so we may have our next social.

Boiler Bursts, Three Injured House Crushed

Rockdale, Texas, Feb. 14.—Three small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cust Lorenz were injured, their home was moved off its blocks and badly wrecked, a deep hole was torn in the ground and the entire eastern part of the town was shocked by the explosion of a boiler at the Phillips & Perry well in the eastern extension of the Rockdale oil field, one-half mile north of town, late Sunday.

The boiler was hurled a distance of about 300 feet into the Lorenz front yard, knocking the house off its blocks crushing the front porch, tearing thru the front walls and covering the house with mud and water. Lena Lorenz received a badly injured ankle and two smaller daughters received minor injuries. A small boy was knocked thru the porch but was uninjured. The mother and six other children were unhurt.

Bill For Statewide Uniform Physical Education Endorsed By Congress

During the present session of the Texas Legislature a bill will be introduced which if favorably received, will make physical education an established department in the educational systems of the state. This bill has the hearty endorsement of the Texas Congress of Mothers and the Parent Teacher Association, the State Physical Education Association, the State Medical Association and the Texas Branch of the American Legion.

Arguments for the bill by those who favor its passage, are based upon sound economical principles, and are in text as follows:

1. Medical examination shows that 50 to 75 percent of Texas school children have preventable or curablephysical defects which retard their mental progress.

2. Correction of defects thru physical education would mean as savings to the state in money now spent on children who fail and must repeat their grade.

3. Modern physical education will provide physical examinations to determine the nature of defects; and will provide activity and instruction making for physical fitness and proficiency; will teach habits of wholesome use of leisure time; and will develop character through teaching good sportmanship, discipline and emotional control.

4. A state director of physical education, working under the state superintendent of public instruction, can prevent the over stimulation of interscholastic athletics and keep athletics a part of the physical education program.

5. The bill as prepared makes ample provision for gradual preparation and adjustment of teachers and schools to a program including physical education.

6. Thirty-three states have Physical education laws, 28 states have systems and manuals insuring uniformity of courses, and 16 states have supervisors of physical education in the office of the superintendent of public instruction.

7. If Texas is to lead the South and mount to its rightful place in the educational world; it needs a law requiring that physical education be taught in the public schools and to insure uniform courses suited to the physical ability and requirements of all grades and types of children. The law should authorize the employment of a state supervisor of physical education to work under the state superintendent of public instruction.

Any individual or organization wishing detailed information regarding ths bill, may secure same by addressing Dr. David K. Brace, Austin, Texas, state chairman of Physical Education, Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent Teacher Association, or Prof. John R. Bender, College Station, Texas, president Texas State Physical Education Association, Senator Edgar E. Witt will introduce the bill into the senate and Hon. H. T. Brown, chairman of the educational committee into the House.

BETTER TO GO TO MOVIES ON SUNDAY THAN OTHER PLACES, LEGISLATOR TELLS PROTESTING AUSTIN PASTOR

Austin, Tex., Feb. 11.—It would be better were the ordinary laboring citizen and members of his family down at the moving picture house together after 2 p. m., on Sunday than they be separately at the many other places they may drift to during those hours in the present condition of social disorder, Representative R. R. Smith of Atascosa County has written Dr. W. F. Bryan of Austin, who wrote the legislature protesting passage of the House of a bill legalizing moving pictures after 2 p. m. on Sunday.

Dr. Bryan had advised Smith that the Austin Ministerial Alliance had voted "to deplore the fact that a bill has been introduced in the House granting picture shows and theaters the right to operate on Sunday."

"I have little use for a moving picture," Smith wrote Dr. Bryan. "I am not interested in attending them on Sunday or any other time.

"Your city maintains a Barton Springs bathing resort on Sundays for instance. I am making no adverse comment on that institution or the sometimes criticized state of undress in which the respective sexes mingle at that place. But I cannot see that it is more worldly to sit dressed up in a moving picture on Sunday afternoon than to sit in a one-piece bathing suit on the banks of a spring branch, and I doubt if what seen in the one place is any more demoralizing to those who are prone to be tempted than what's seen at the other. So long as the one institution is commended on the Sabbath I see no occasion to condemn the other.

"It has always seemed to me that when we call in the strong arm of the law to enforce our religious views on others rather than depend upon the stronger appeals of the spirit of God to commend our position that we lesson the strength of God's appeal.

"I have read the story of Jesus Christ as related by the New Testament and have found nowhere a record of our Lord having called upon the civil authorities of Jerusalem or Rome to enforce the laws of God or pass restrictions upon the violations of His laws. If you know of any such passages I would be glad to have you cite them."

Chevrolet Again Smashes Records

Responding to a winter demand for cars unprecedented in the history of the company, the Chevrolet Motor Company in January again shattered all production records for that month by building 73,676 units, almost 30,000 cars more than were made in January of 1926.

The January, 1926 production in its turn almost tripled the production of January, 1925.

Under the tentative production schedule for February the company will be prepared to make a total of 84,000 units, which would establish a new monthly production record in the history of the company, exceeding even the record monthly output in September, 1926 of 81,158 cars.

The heavy winter production is the result of demand for "the most beautiful car in Chevrolet history" which Chevrolet buyers have made upon the company's dealers since the announcement of lower prices and numerous refinemnts in the entire Chevrolet line.

In 1926 the Chevrolet Motor Company led all manufacturers of gear shift cars by building 732,145 cars, an increase of more than 40 per cent over the previous record year. Under a ten million dollar expansion program initiated in 1926 the Chevrolet Motor Company is equipped for even greater production during 1927.

The new machinery making this enlarged production possible is completely installed in the various plants of the company throughout the country and all necessary changes of dies and tools have been made to insure uninterrupted manufacturing schedules during this year.

I have a job for some one that needs it. Better suited for a young man. 39-tf

BANK GUARANTY LAW REPEAL IS SIGNED

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL AND ACT IS EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY

Austin, Texas, Feb. 11.—Governor Dan Moody Friday signed and filed in the office of Secretary of State Senate Bill No. 115, repealing all forms of bank guaranty. The bill became effective immediately after the Governor filed it for record, it having passed both branches of the Legislature by a vote that carried the emergency clauses, which declared that "the importance of this act and the fact that the many recent changes of the statutes governing State banks heretofore are somewhat confusing and hard to be complied with, create an emergency and an imperative public necessity."

Under the provisions of the bill, bonds executed and securities deposited by State banks before the passage of the act as members of the bond security system are not to be affected by the repeal until the lapse of one year from the time of approval of the bonds or deposit of the securities with the Banking Commissioner under existing statutes. It is further provided that the statutes repealed shall remain in full force and effect for the purpose of liquidating all failed banks in the hands of the Banking Commissioner at the time the new act takes effect and that the passage of the act shall not affect the liability of State banks for assessments to the guaranty fund as such liability existed at the time the act takes effect, nor shall any State bank be permitted to withdraw its interest in the guaranty fund until all lawful demands existing at the time the act takes effect have been fully satisfied.

When the repealing act became effective Friday there were only 25 State banks left in the bank guaranty fund, which at one time contained more than 900 State banks. There are 746 State bank in existence now and 721 were using the bond plan. The number of State banks has been growing less for several years once having reached almost 1,000.

There is now no form of guaranteeing deposits in banks in operation in Texas. The law providing for guaranteeing deposits was enacted at the second called session of the Legislature in 1909 and became effective January 1, 1910.

During that time the member banks in the guaranty fund were called on to put up approximately $20,000,000 to pay depositors in failed State banks. These insolvent banks possessed assets of only about $4,000,000 and thus cost the other State banks net about $16,000,000.

The burden became so heavy that State banks clamored for a change and two years ago the Thirty-Ninth Legislature enacted a law making it easy for a State bank to change from the guaranty fund to the bond plan of guaranteeing deposits and there was a landslide to the latter plan. Before the law was passed only about fifty State banks were using the bond plan, they having adopted it from their organization, and when the guaranty law passed out of existence Friday less than that number remained in the guaranty fund.

Fund Is Insolvent

Banking Commissioner Charles O. Austin said Friday that depositors in State banks that closed since Sept. 29 will not be paid in full, but only to the extent that the assets of the failed banks will provide funds. The few banks in the fund can not be assessed to the extent of paying these late claims. The bank guaranty fund is thus insolvent.

A clause in the repealing act provides that it shall not destroy and liabilities heretofore accruing, but shall preserve them until legally satisfied.

FARM RELIEF BILL PASSED BY SENATE

HOPES EXPRESSED BILL WILL GO THROUGH BEFORE ADJOURNMENT

Washington, Feb. 11.—Reversing itself in less than eight months the senate passed the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill late today 47 to 39.

This measure will be transmitted to the house tomorrow and efforts will be made to substitute it for the companion measure pending since last Wednesday. A final house vote is expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

Unless the senate bill, which was loaded with last minute amendments is approved by the house without change the legislation must go to conference and then run the gauntlet through the legislative jam in the last few days of the session.

Favorable action in the house is anticipated by both proponents and opponents, but there is uncertainty as to the attitude of President Coolidge.

The equalizaion fee provision was retained, all efforts to defer its operation failing by overwhelming votes.

The first major assault was by Walsh, democrat, Montana, who want it deferred for two years as to all farm commodities affected by the bill, but his amendment was rejected, 52 to 35.

Reed, democrat, Missouri, then proposed deferment of the fee for one year as to cotton, but his motion was votd down, 52 to 36. Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, then proposed its deferment for two years and that went out, 69 to 17. Democrats alone supported the proposed amendment.

The senate adopted a series of amendments, including one by McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, adding tobacco to the list of basic agricultural products on which the equalization fee would be levied. Other products which would be effected by the bill were wheat, corn, rice, cotton and hogs.

The Bledsoe insurance plan, offered by Senator Harrison, was adopted, 51 to 33. Under this plan, the federal farm board would be authorized to use a part of the $250,000,000 revolving fund proposed in the bill to insure producers against price declines by assessing a premium on any or all of the basic commodities. It is designed particularly, however, to protect cotton producers.

Two amendments, one by Simmons of North Carolina and another by McKellar of Tennessee, were adopted. They would guarantee that a majority of the producers of any crop should declare for operation of the fee provision before it could be put into force.

After the bill had been perfected, Senator Curtis of Kansas, the republican leader, offered his substitute, known as the Curtis-Crisp co-operative credit bill, but it was rejected 54 to 32.

COTTON SLEDDING TO CUT PICKING COSTS

LOW PRICE OF PRODUCT BRINGS CHEAP HARVEST METHOD TO FRONT

Low cotton prices this season have stimulated in Texas and Oklahoma a great increase in a low-cost method of harvesting cotton which was first practiced about ten years ago. This is the use of sleds or strippers for pulling or snapping cotton from stalks. Two main types of sleds are in general use, says the United States Department of Agriculture. One type is adapted for harvesting small cotton (the kind usually grown in the Staked Plains area) and the other for harvesting cotton where the plant has a more vigorous growth. The latter type is used chiefly in the bottom lands of the plains area, and in some areas farther east.

Although this method of harvesting cotton often leaves 15 per cent or more of the crop in the field, it is immensely cheaper than picking. It is considerably cheaper than snapping cotton by hand. It is obviously advantageous, in seasons like the present one, when cotton prices and labor rates are such that the crop will hardly stand the expense of harvesting by picking or snapping. Indeed, it is generally believed by the cotton farmers that sledding is only an emergency method of harvesting. Nevertheless, some producers contend that sledding has come to stay, and that great improvement will be made in this harvesting method. Ginners say that cotton sledded under ideal conditions is of about the same quality as the usual run of snapped or pulled cotton. But where fields are grassy or where badly constructed sleds are used, the method may give poor results.

Other conditions besides low cotton prices may favor the spread of cotton sledding. Among them are scarcity of labor and early frosts. In the newer cotton areas of Texas and Oklahoma, where machine methods enable cotton to be produced on a more extensive scale than in other parts of the Cotton Belt, farm families can cultivate much more cotton than it is possible for them to harvest without additional labor. Thus the problem of harvest labor in the cotton fields arises. Furthermore, the picking operation becomes too difficult after killing frosts, because the burrs then break off the stalk at a touch. Sledding partially solves the double problem of economizing harvest labor and saving cotton that has been caught by early frosts.

Although sledding cotton has been described as simply a mechanical means for snapping or pulling cotton, the operation is not really adequately described by the terms snapping and pulling. The sleds have toothed arrangements, not unlike mower guards. They strip all bolls from the stalks regardless of their state of maturity. Naturally considerable foreign material is harvested at the same time. This at first causes some ginners to oppose the use of the sled, but recently they have shown less opposition.

Sledding was used on an enormous scale in the western part of the cotton area the past season. Data are being compiled by the department as to the amount of cotton harvsted in this way. Estimates of the amount of snapped and sledded cotton in Texas and Oklahoma run from three to four million bales, which is a good proportion of the western crop. Probably more than half of the cotton in the semiarid regions of Texas and Oklahoma was harvested by sledding. The method is most applicable in areas where the height of cotton is rather uniformly from 12 to 15 inches. Small dwarfed cotton stalks are universally found in the semi-arid regions. A sled has been devised for harvesting cotton from the taller stalks, but this is not the demonstrated success that the ordinary sled has been on the shorter cotton.

Cotton Men to Meet in Dallas March 25-26

Waco, Texas, Feb. 13.—At the office here of L. T. Murray, secretary of the Texas Cotton Association, headquarters of which are maintained in Waco, it was stated that the largest attendance in the history of the organization is expected for the sixteenth annual convention, to be held at the Adolphus Hotel, Dallas, March 25-26.

D. C. Reed of Austin is president of the Texas Cotton Association, which was organized in Waco. Representatives of many foreign cotton exchanges will attend the cotton standards conference in Washington, to be held about the middle of March, and all of these are expected, at the conclusion of that meeting, to come to Dallas for the Texas Cotton Association convention.

Relics On Sam Bass Gathered By University

Austin, Texas, Feb. 16.—In an effort to preserve as many historical relics as possible of noted figures of Texas' early history, considerable material concerning Sam Bass, the famed Texas bandit, has been gathered by the University of Texas library. The cartridge belt Bass is said to have worn in his stand against the Texas Rangers at Round Rock in 1878 was presented the library some years ago by Sam Arnett of Lubbock, Texas. There are exactly thirteen cartridges of .44 caliber remaining in the belt which gives mute evidence of hard wear. Two of the loops of leather holding the cartridges are broken, and it is said they were cut by flying bullets during Bass' last fight. In addition to the belt, the University possesses considerable printed material about the Texas desperado. Original material selected by W. P. Webb, associate profssor of history in the University, from the office of the adjutant general is also in the collection. Webb has sepnt much time following the history of the Texas Rangers.
